Farmingville, NY - Deputy Supervisor/Councilman Dan Panico with the Marks family launching the "Can Tabs for Kids" program today at Town of Brookhaven's Town Hall.

"This is a wonderful program to benefit a very worthy cause," commented Brookhaven Town Councilman Dan Panico. "Maria Marks is a survivor with an unbreakable spirit who has made a remarkable impact at only 11 years of age. I thank her and her family for working so diligently to help others."

"Can Tabs for Kids" began with an idea in 2010 from 11 year old Maria Marks. Maria was born with hepatoblastoma which was a cancerous tumor on her liver. With 20% chance of survival, Maria (pictured above) began chemotherapy treatments at two weeks old until she was five months old. She beat all odds and is now 10 years in remission. Maria has suffered a hearing loss because of chemo treatments and is doing fine. When she was in the third grade, she noticed the school announcing fundraisers for diabetes awareness and for the victims of the earthquake in Haiti, but there were no fundraisers for childhood cancer awareness. Maria wanted to give back and help children with cancer like her. She brought that to the attention of school officials and at that time, her parents, Peter and Nancy Marks (seen above), got involved in the Sunrise Fund at Stony Brook University Medical Center.

Maria's dream is to have everyone in Suffolk County collect can tabs to help children with cancer. Please help Maria's dream come true. All proceeds will benefit the Sunrise Fund at Stony Brook University Medical Center, an organization that raises funds and awareness about childhood cancer. The Town of Brookhaven will continue and expand the effort started by the students from the William Floyd Elementary Schools. To date they have collected over 3 million can tabs. Collection bins will be located at the following locations around the Town of Brookhaven:
